- Observing of the painting Rdeči parazol and its author Matej Sternen
- Mixing of taupe watery colour
- Drawing the motif with the coloured water

- instructions

session 1

- We will make a painting Rdeči parazol like Matej Sternen
- First, we will mix taupe watery colour
- Using this colour draw a motif which covers the majority of the sheet's surface

- teacher's role

session 1

- Presentation of the artist, his work and the period in which he created (the impressionism)
- Guiding students to observe carefully the painting, the painting technique and the shades of colours
- Guiding the students when mixing the watery colour
- Guiding the students attention into the drawing of the big motif

session 2, 3

- Mixing colours for covering larger surface (of the motif)
- Using contrast colours and different shades of colours
- Using short brush strokes

session 2

- Using dense colours cover the entire surface of the motif
- Pay attention to the mixing and shading (lightening and darkening) of colours. They will be similar to the original work.

session 3

- After the observation, create the background of the painting using short brush strokes and mixing colours

session 2, 3

- guiding students when covering the motif and the background
